Location Facts

Sevilla is the largest town in southern Spain, located in the Seville province in Andalusia, two hours by bullet train from Madrid. Roman, Moorish, Jewish and Christian influences are evident in the many palaces, towers, walls and churches, from the architecture to the intricate carvings and designs on church walls. It is a thriving city with outdoor parks, cafes and entertainment among its rich surroundings. It is the center of Andalusian culture and the heart of the flamenco. Its mild climate makes Sevilla an alfresco experience. For Spain Map and other information: <http://geology.com/world/spain-satellite-image.shtml>
