Location Facts

Finland is a small Scandinavian country population-wise, but the seventh largest country in Europe in terms of area. Helsinki, in south central Finland, is the capital and the largest city. Imatra is several hours east of Helsinki, and connected by the excellent Finnish rail system. Imatra is known for its legendary rapids and nature reserve, Russian-Finnish population, Alvo Aalto's Church of the Church of Three Crosses and its fresh water saunas. The sauna is something purely Finnish. Originally the sauna was a place where children were born and the sick were cared for as well as a place for washing. There are saunas everywhere; in fact, there is one sauna for every four people in Finland.
